Intranet drawing and document management system

The need to provide your staff with timely, accurate and up-to-date technical information is now seen as a key issue in maintaining competitiveness and increasing efficiency. Radan has developed Radview to provide you with a cost effective means to access drawings electronically across your computer networks.

Secure drawing control

Radview gives straightforward, effective and secure control of drawing distribution. It is simple to use, takes advantage of existing networks and is quick to implement.

Radview also offers the ability to view drawings and include scanned images of old drawings, design specifications and spread sheets. In addition, it allows feedback from users and gives an increased level of control.

Drawing distribution

Radview provides full control of drawing distribution to the department most able to manage it - the Drawing Office. Only the approved drawing releases can be found and viewed. Drawings can also be printed – saving the labour of printing, plotting, distributing and checking by senior staff.

Radview also gives end users a feedback function, allowing efficient and effective communication between the shop floor and the drawing office.

Features include

Easy-to-use windows interface

Intranet-based shop floor access

Improved document control

Company wide access to Radraft drawings to improve productivity

Exploits existing corporate network infrastructure

Paperless, straightforward, effective and secure control of drawing distribution
